

Josh Lance

Exploring the boundaries between the world of nature and the inner world is what drives the creative process. Josh's favorite style of art is using expressive strokes and limited color palettes to create unique impressionistic works on boards and canvas. He prides on using a restrictive palette to provoke a greater color harmony. Josh would prefer to paint from life as well as photos can distort the image, but does use photography for composition and reference purposes. His natural abilities to interpret life through music, poetry, and ultimately painting led Josh on a creative path that explored all these elements through his artwork.

Josh loves teaching, and believe it's important to pass on the knowledge to those who want to learn. This is apparent in why he enjoys blogging and making videos. It's all about having fun and documenting his art life.

Since 1991, Josh's commitment to artistic expression has led to over 30 solo and group exhibitions in New York City, New Jersey, Philadelphia, and New Mexico. In 2006, Josh relocated to Santa Fe which had an immediate profound effect on his life. In 2007, Josh participated in the GoFest outdoor fair in Albuquerque, New Mexico.

In 2008, Josh's artwork was exhibited in Santa Fe's City Hall and completed two murals in Santa Fe (2008) and Capitan, NM (2009). Josh currently lives in ABQ, NM.
